DECISION

MARY MILLER CRACRAFT, Administrative Law Judge. Beena Beauty Holding, Inc. d/b/a Planet Beauty (Respondent)¹, maintains an arbitration/dispute resolution provision in its commission agreement-sales (the Agreement) which prohibits class or collective legal claims in all forums, arbitral and judicial, and requires signatory employees to settle any dispute arising out of or relating to their employment with Respondent in accordance with the terms of the provisions of the Agreement. The General Counsel alleges that Respondent's entering into, maintenance, and enforcement² of the Agreement with employees violates Section 8(a)(1) of the National Labor Relations Act (the Act).³ Further, the General Counsel alleges that employees would reasonably construe the language used in the Agreement to preclude them from filing unfair labor practice charges with the National Labor Relations Board (the Board or NLRB) in violation of Section 8(a)(1).⁴ The violations are found as alleged.

On the entire record,⁵ and after considering the briefs filed by counsel for the General Counsel and the brief filed by counsel for the Respondent, the following findings of fact and conclusions of law are made.

² In a civil suit brought against Respondent by Sanchez in state court, Respondent sought to compel arbitration pursuant to the Agreement.

⁵ The facts were submitted by stipulation. No credibility resolutions are required on this record.

I. JURISDICTION

Respondent is a corporation with an office and place of business located in Studio City, California where it engages in the retail sale of beauty supplies and related products. During the twelve-month period ending April 7, 2015, it derived gross revenue in excess of $500,000 and during that same period, sold and shipped goods valued in excess of $5000 directly to points outside the State of California. Thus, the parties stipulate and I find that Respondent is an employer engaged in commerce within the meaning of Section 2(2), (6), and (7) of the Act. Accordingly, this dispute affects interstate commerce and the Board has jurisdiction of this case pursuant to Section 10(a) of the Act. Respondent's claim that this matter is time-barred is rejected.⁶

II. FACTS

A. Arbitration Provision of the Agreement

The parties agree and it is found that since at least April 2, 2013, Respondent has maintained an arbitration provision in the Agreement that prohibits class or collective legal claims in all forums, arbitral and judicial, and requires employees to settle any dispute arising out of or relating to their employment with Respondent in accordance with the terms of the arbitration provision of the Agreement. The parties agree and I find that by signing the Agreement, Sanchez and other commissioned sales employees were required to be bound to the terms of the arbitration provision of the Agreement. There is no evidence that any employee was able to decline or opt out of the arbitration provision of the Agreement.

Paragraph 11 of the Agreement, the arbitration provision,⁷ provides,

The Company ("Planet Beauty and its Affiliates") is committed to provid[ing] the best possible working conditions for employees. However, the Company and its employees recognize that occasionally differences may arise during or following an employee's employment with the Company. By accepting or continuing employment with the [C]ompany, you agree and understand that you and the Company mutually agree to resolve an[y] binding arbitration any claim that, in the absen[ce] of agreement, would be resolved in a court of law under applicable state or federal law. The claims governed by this agreement are those that you or the Company may have relating to your employment with, behavior during or termination from, the Company. Claims for worker compensation or unemployment compensation benefits are not subject to this agreement. By accepting or continuing employment with the [C]ompany, you and the Company both agree to resolve such claims through final and binding arbitration. This includes, but is not limited to, claims of employment discrimination because of race, sex, religion, nation[al] origin, color, age, disability, medical condition, marital status, gender identity, sexual preference or any other characteristic protected by law. It also includes any claim you might have for unlawful harassment including sexual harassment and unlawful retaliation; any claims under contract or tort law; any claims for wages, compensation or benefits; any claim for trade secret violations, unlawful competition or breach of fiduciary duty. Each party may be represented by an attorney and each party shall bear the expenses of its/his/her own attorney's fees and costs, experts, witnesses, and the preparation and presentation of evidence. The Company will pay all types of costs that are unique to arbitration. The Company shall be entitled to recover any costs paid if it prevails at the arbitration.⁸ . . . This Agreement does not create a contract of employment and does not in any way change the "At-Will" status of your employment. You and the Company hereby agree that this agreement shall survive the termination of your employment with the Company. THE COMPANY AND YOU AGREE TO GIVE UP ANY RIGHT TO A TRIAL BY JURY AND RIGHT TO APPEAL AND TO SUBMIT ANY CLAIMS THAT EITHER HAS AGAINST THE OTHER TO FINAL AND BINDING ARBITRATION. YOU ALSO AGREE TO WAIVE YOUR RIGHTS TO PARTICIPATE IN A CLASS ACTION OR BE NAMED AS CLASS REPRESENTATIVES. Your signature below acknowledges that you have been given sufficient time to read & understand this agreement. Your signature further certifies that you have had the opportunity to consult with legal counsel prior to executing this agreement.

I acknowledge that I have received a copy of this Commission Agreement. I have read, understood and agree to the terms and conditions set forth under this Agreement.

This contract will supersede all other contracts previously signed and agreed upon by the employee and employee representatives. B. Wage and Hour Class Action

On December 9, 2014, after his separation from employment with Respondent, Sanchez filed a wage and hour class action suit against Respondent in the Superior Court of the State of California, County of Los Angeles (Superior Court). By letter of December 30, 2014, Respondent informed Sanchez that the arbitration/dispute resolution provision of the Agreement prohibited bringing the class action complaint. Thereafter, on March 6, 2015,⁹ Sanchez filed a first amended class action complaint.

By motion of March 31, Respondent sought to compel individual arbitration of the class action wage and hour claims. Sanchez filed opposition to the motion to compel on April 23. Respondent withdrew its motion to compel individual arbitration and on April 30, it re-filed its motion to compel individual arbitration. On May 18, Sanchez filed an opposition and Respondent's reply brief was filed June 1.

By order of June 22, the Superior Court found in favor of Respondent on the motion to compel arbitration. By order of August 25, the Superior Court dismissed Sanchez's class claims without prejudice, giving him 60 days to find a qualified class representative. Although the court granted Sanchez 60 days to find a suitable class representative not subject to arbitration, Sanchez was unable to find a class representative who had not signed the Agreement's arbitration provision.

III. ANALYSIS

A. Entering into and Maintenance of the Agreement

In both D. R. Horton,¹⁰ and Murphy Oil,¹¹ the Board held that an employer violates the Act when it requires employees, as a condition of their employment, to sign an agreement waiving their right to file joint, class, or collective claims regarding wages, hours or working conditions against their employer in any forum, arbitral or judicial. As the General Counsel points out, this holding has been extended to include agreements that were voluntarily entered into as well.¹²

Respondent claims that D. R. Horton and Murphy Oil were wrongly decided relying on (1) D. R. Horton, Inc. v. NLRB, 737 F.3d 344 (5th Cir 2013) (arbitration agreements containing class action waivers are enforceable); (2) the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA)¹³ as interpreted in AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 131 S.Ct 1740, 1746 (2011) (rule neutral on its face but applied in a fashion that disfavors arbitration is not grounds for revocation of any contract within meaning of savings clause of FAA); (3) American Express Co. v. Italian Colors Restaurant, 133 S.Ct. 2304 (2013) (class action waiver must be enforced according to its terms in the absence of a contrary Congressional command); (4) lack of inherent conflict between the NLRA and the FAA in that individual arbitration agreements have no effect on any collective-bargaining obligations under the NLRA; (5) inapplicability of the Norris-LaGuardia Act (NLGA)¹⁴ because the Agreement is not illegal under the NLGA and does not constitute a prohibited “yellow dog contract.” These arguments are rejected for the reasons set forth in D. R. Horton and Murphy Oil. Further, as the General Counsel notes, citing On Assignment Staffing Services, Inc., 362 NLRB No. 189, slip op. at 12 (2015), the Board is the agency with primary responsibility for developing and applying national labor policy and need not apologize for adopting positions firmly grounded in Board precedent, Supreme Court decisions, and federal statutes.

Nevertheless, it is clear that the provisions of the Agreement require employees to agree to the arbitration provision as a condition of their employment. There is no opt-out provision and the literal provision states that by accepting or continuing employment, the employee agrees to resolve covered claims through binding arbitration. There is no evidence of employees opting out. The employee’s signature to the entire Agreement is immediately below the arbitration provision. Moreover, as noted by counsel for the General Counsel, in the state court class action suit filed by Sanchez, Respondent argued in support of its motion to compel individual arbitration that employers may condition employment on execution of an arbitration agreement and that its arbitration agreement met California’s heightened enforceability standards for mandatory employment arbitration agreements which are imposed as a condition of employment.¹⁵ Thus, it must be concluded that the arbitration agreement constitutes a condition of employment.

¹² On Assignments Staffing Services, Inc., 362 NLRB No. 189, slip op. at 7 (2015), citing J. I. Case v. NLRB, 321 U.S. 332, 338 (1944) (individual arbitration agreements that would prevent employees from engaging in concerted legal activity must yield to the Act whether or not they were a condition of employment).

¹⁴ 29 U.S.C. § 102.

The parties agree that Respondent’s arbitration provision prohibits class or collective legal claims in all forums, arbitral and judicial, and requires that employees settle any dispute arising out of or relating to their employment with Respondent in accordance with the Agreement. Thus, Respondent’s arbitration requires that employees waive their right to participate in a class action and agree to submit all employment claims except workers compensation and unemployment claims to final and binding arbitration. It is found that the arbitration provision precludes concerted legal activity, a substantive right under Section 7 of the Act, and violates Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

B. Enforcement of Arbitration Provision in Class Action Suit

Relying on the Agreement’s arbitration provision, Respondent sought and was granted enforcement of individual arbitration for Sanchez’s individual claims. It is clear that by seeking to enforce its arbitration provision in the class action lawsuit, Respondent sought to restrain Sanchez statutory right to pursue concerted legal action.¹⁶ Accordingly, I find that by seeking enforcement of the Agreement’s arbitration provision in Sanchez’s wage and hour class action litigation, Respondent violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

C. Access to the Board

In Ralph’s Grocery Co., 363 NLRB No. 128 (2016), the Board stated:

“Preserving and protecting access to the Board is a fundamental goal of the Act,” and so the Board must carefully examine employer rules that may interfere with this goal. SolarCity, 363 NLRB No. 83, slip op. at 4 [(2015)]. In turn, the Board recognizes that “rank-and-file employees . . . cannot be expected to have the expertise to examine company rules from a legal standpoint.” Id., slip op. at 5, quoting Ingram Book Co., 315 NLRB 515, 516 fn. 2 (1994).

Examination of the arbitration provision under these precepts reveals that it does not explicitly prohibit employees from filing unfair labor practice charges with the NLRB. Nevertheless, employees would reasonably construe the language of the arbitration provision to prohibit such action. Thus, work rules which do not explicitly restrict Section 7 activities may nevertheless violate the Act if employees would reasonably construe the rule as prohibiting Section 7 activity.¹⁷ With the specific exemption of workers compensation and unemployment compensation claims, Respondent’s arbitration provision requires employees to agree to pursue any claim that could be resolved in court under state or federal law including employment-related claims by utilizing final and binding individual arbitration. There is no language in the agreement that exempts claims of unfair labor practices. It is reasonable, accordingly, to construe the language of the provision to prohibit the filing of unfair labor practice charges with the NLRB.¹⁸ Respondent argues, however, that the language of the Agreement applies only to those claims that “would resolve in a court of law under applicable state or federal law.” Respondent avers that this language does not apply to claims brought in administrative proceedings before the Board because it is not a court of law and thus employees would reasonably understand that NLRB proceedings are not implicated. As the General Counsel correctly notes,¹⁹ however, this argument is not viable because the Board has held that non-lawyer employees would not be familiar with the intricacies of federal court jurisdiction. Thus, it is found that by maintaining the Agreement, which is reasonably construed as prohibiting access to the Board, Respondent violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

¹⁷ Lutheran Heritage Village-Livonia, 343 NLRB 646, 647 (2004): A work rule may be found unlawful if it explicitly restricts Section 7 activity or (1) employees would reasonably construe the rule as prohibiting Section 7 activity; (2) the rule was promulgated in response to union activity; or (3) the rule has been applied to restrict the exercise of Section 7 activity.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. By entering into and maintaining the arbitration/dispute resolution provision of its commission agreement – sales, which prohibits class or collective action in all forums, arbitral and judicial, and requires employees to settle any dispute arising out of or relating to their employment with Respondent in accordance with the terms of the arbitration provision, Respondent has engaged in unfair labor practices within the meaning of Section 2(2), (6), and (7) of the Act and has violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.
2. By taking actions to enforce the arbitration/dispute resolution provision of its commission agreement – sales in the Los Angeles Superior Court class action litigation, Sanchez v. Planet Beauty, Inc., Case No. BC566065, specifically by letter of December 30, 2014, by its March 31 and April 30 motions to compel arbitration and briefs in support of these motions, Respondent has violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.
3. By maintaining the arbitration/dispute resolution provision of its commission agreement – sales, which is reasonably interpreted as precluding employees from filing unfair labor practice charges with the Board, Respondent has violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

REMEDY

Having found that Respondent has engaged in certain unfair labor practices, it must be ordered to cease and desist and to take certain affirmative action designed to effectuate the policies of the Act. Consistent with the Board’s usual practice in cases involving unlawful litigation, Respondent must reimburse Sanchez for all reasonable expenses and legal fees, with interest,²⁰ incurred in opposing Respondent’s unlawful letter and motions to compel individual

Respondent shall also be ordered to rescind or revise the Agreement, notify employees and the Los Angeles Superior Court that it has done so and that it will no longer oppose the lawsuit on the basis of the Agreement. Respondent must also rescind or revise the Agreement to make clear to employees that its Agreement does not constitute a waiver of the right to maintain employment-related joint, class, or collective actions and that it does not bar or restrict employees right to file charges with the NLRB.
